

Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement 2024

This Statement is made pursuant to section 54 of the Modern Slavery Act 2015 (the Act) and sets out the steps that Arbuthnot Banking Group PLC (ABG) has taken to ensure that slavery and human trafficking is not taking place in any part of its subsidiary businesses or their respective supply chains.

Introduction

ABG does not tolerate modern slavery or human trafficking within its group and is committed to ensuring that the supply chains of its trading subsidiaries are free from slavery and human trafficking. This Statement sets out the actions that ABG has required that its trading subsidiaries take, and continue to take, to ensure that they understand and combat slavery and human trafficking risks within their businesses.

ABG business

ABG is a public company registered in England and Wales which has two classes of share. Its Ordinary shares are listed on the Alternative Investment Market of the London Stock Exchange (AIM) and on the Aquis Stock Exchange (AQSE) Growth Market; it also has in issue Ordinary Non-Voting shares which are listed on the AQSE Growth Market only. ABG, as a holding company for its subsidiaries, is not a trading business. ABG has a very limited number of direct suppliers and although it is not required to review the nature of these suppliers, as it does not itself supply goods or services, ABG conducts an annual review of its suppliers in the context of the Act. In relation to its trading subsidiaries, they are required to adhere to the requirements of the Act. The individual statement for Arbuthnot Latham and Co., Limited, relating to it and its subsidiaries from time to time (together AL Group), can be found on its website www.arbuthnotlatham.co.uk.

ABG requirements for the AL Group's Policy on slavery and human trafficking

ABG requires that AL implements a policy, procedures and processes in relation to the AL Group, which reflects the commitment to act ethically and with integrity, in all their respective business relationships and additionally, to ensure that slavery and human trafficking are not taking place anywhere in the AL Group or the AL Group's supply chain. The AL Group also operates a Whistleblowing Policy, which encourages our employees to report any concerns or wrongdoing.

Supply chain risk within the AL Group

The AL Group operates within a professional and regulated environment and does not have complex supply chains or obtain material services from suppliers with a high risk of slavery or human trafficking. AL has adopted a risk-based approach to reviewing its existing suppliers and will adopt this approach for any new supplier with which it contracts. The AL Group's Anti-Modern Slavery Act Policy is available to all existing and potential new suppliers. Where applicable, the AL Group ensure that their suppliers have a contractual obligation to comply with all applicable laws that apply to their supply of goods and services to us, regardless of the jurisdiction in which they operate.

Due diligence processes for slavery and human trafficking

As part of the ABG initiative to identify and mitigate the risk of slavery and human trafficking, the AL Group is required to carry out appropriate due diligence when engaging and working with suppliers, whilst also ensuring that the diligence undertaken is proportionate to the products or services to be provided and the risk involved. All of the AL Group's supplier relationships are reviewed on an annual basis, or biennial, if they are considered to be 'low risk'.

Training

ABG requires that AL provides training on the requirements of the Act to all its members of staff and those of the AL Group. This training is reviewed biennially to ensure that it remains relevant and up to date.

Looking ahead

We will continue to review and report on the following indicators to assess the effectiveness of our actions:

- The number of employees trained in relation to slavery and human trafficking
- Any non-compliance with the Modern Slavery Act and its requirements.

Conclusion

In 2023 the AL Group had no reported incidents of human rights breaches, slavery, or trafficking. We reiterate our commitment to the Act and its underlying principles.

Review

This Statement has been reviewed by the ABG Board of Directors. It will be reviewed annually and updated as required.
